

Carolyn Sinclair

Carolyn Sinclair is a co-founder and partner of Strategic Business Risks Inc (SBRI) which delivers investigation, emergency management and educational solutions to public and private organizations and institutions.

She has over 25 years of professional and practical experience in the areas of forensic investigations, special Investigations, emergency management and risk management.

For the past 12 years she has been a member of an International Archeological Forensic Recovery Team. This organization responds to national and international requests for aid in the search and recovery and repatriation of human remains as a result of natural disasters terrorism and crimes against humanity. Team deployments include evidence recovery, collection and preservation for the purpose of crimes against humanity tribunals and family repatriation.

Under the umbrella of SBRI, Carolyn operates under contract as the Emergency Planning Specialist to the City of New Westminster and Emergency Services Coordinator to New Westminster Police Service and to the City of New Westminster as ESS Director Alternate. She is also a sessional instructor in the Emergency Management Division of the Justice Institute of BC. During the past 12 years she has worked with numerous organizations and municipalities in developing customized training and plans in the areas of emergency and disaster management.